

A Byron Bay hostel

Dorms, private rooms and a shared kitchen full of new mates.

Saltbush Hostel

BYRON BAY HOSTEL

The people behind Saltbush Hostel

Saltbush Hostel sits two streets back from Byron Bay beach, close enough to walk down in bare feet. We built it for backpackers who want a bed that's comfortable, a kitchen that works, and people around who are up for the same adventure. Every dorm bed gets its own curtain, light and power point, because privacy still matters when you're sharing a room with five strangers who become mates by breakfast.

01

Six single beds in one mixed room, each with its own curtain, reading light and power point.

What's in the room

Six single beds

One room, six single beds, each made up and ready for the next guest.

Privacy curtain

Every bed has its own curtain to pull across for proper, private sleep.

Reading light & power

A personal light and power point at every bed, no extension cords needed.

Shared kitchen access

Cook your own meals in the shared kitchen, open to every guest.

02

Your own space in a four-bed female dorm

Four beds, four mates, one room.

Four beds, your own space

Four single beds

A four-bed dorm reserved for women, each with a proper single bed and full-length mattress.

Curtain on every bed

Pull your curtain closed and switch on your own reading light, any time you like.

Power point at every bed

Charge your phone or camera right beside your pillow — no shared power boards to fight over.

Solo women welcome

Built for solo female travellers who want their own space inside a social room.

03

A private room, two streets from the beach

One double bed, your own door, and the shared kitchen whenever you want it.

Everything in your private double

One double bed

A private room built around a single double bed, just for the two of you.

Your own door

Shut the door on hostel noise. This room is private, not shared.

Shared kitchen

Use the communal kitchen any time, the same as every guest at Saltbush.

Live availability

Dates and rates change daily, so check what's open before you book.

More than a bed for the night

Two streets from the beach

Grab a towel and walk to the sand in minutes.

Your own corner

Every dorm bed has its own curtain, light and power point.

Shared kitchen

Cook up, share stories, save your cash for the next stop.

Dorms or private

Six-bed dorms, a four-bed female dorm or a private double - your call.
